

Business capability map

A business capability map serves as the key, foundational element of your enterprise architecture, providing a clear framework for strategic planning and decision-making. Mapping applications to named business capabilities allows you to quickly identify gaps, duplications, and opportunities for modernization.

You can use this three-level overview of potential business capabilities to build a map for your organization.

Dive into our documentation on business capability modeling. Here you will find additional guidelines, clear definitions, and practical examples of effective business capability models.

Learn more

[illegible]